

Occupational Health and Safety risk factors can have direct or indirect effects on levels of organizational commitment, job satisfaction, job productivity of workers in service companies as well as other types of industries.

A recently passed legal regulation requires all companies to provide Occupational Safety and Health Training to all of its employees.

UP provides, not only Occupational Safety and Health consultancy but also provide e-learning courses on this subject. By using our services and products, you can make sure your employee have a healthy and productive work environment.